Robert Taylor at Paramount

Robert Taylor, perhaps the fastest rising of recent actors, is teamed in his next picture with the glamorous Barbara Stanwyck. The movie is entitled "His Brother's Wife" and plays at the Paramount Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Taylor takes the role of a brilliant young scientist who is about to embark on an expedition to South America to discover and perfect a serum for the dreaded spotted fever. Just as he is about to go he meets and falls in love with Barbara Stanwyck, a mannequin. He plans to marry her and give up his work but his brother and father persuade him not to abandon his promising career and so he sets sail for South America. This infuriates his fiancee and she retaliates by marrying Taylor's brother. With this situation, it is easy to deduct that the play lends itself to exciting and surprising episodes.

Will Rogers in "State Fair" will return to the Paramount Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

This picture, one of the immortal Roger's best, also stars Janet Gaynor, Sally Eilers, Norman Foster and Victor Jory.

Green Pastures at Trenton

Native American plays that have enjoyed the greatest popularity... if popularity is measured by long runs and frequent revivals... are Uncle Tom's Cabin, Way Down East and The Old Homestead and in more modern times, Abie's Irish Rose, Lightnin' and The Green Pastures.

The Green Pastures wound up a run of five years in 1935, 20 months of which were in New York.

In all Green Pastures played in 266 cities in 39 states. With few exceptions, the cast remained the same throughout the tour, although two of the leading actors died during the run. Just before the play closed the leading actor, Richard Berry Harrison, then more than 70 years old, died.

Thirty of the players were retained for the film version.

Green Pastures comes to Lynchburg's Trenton Theatre next week, beginning Monday August 17.

The principals in the cast include Rex Ingram, Oscar Polk, Eddie Anderson, Frank Wilson, George Reed, Bertha Wright, Edna Harris and Ida Forsyne.

More than 800 actors appear in some of the larger scenes.

The picture is based on Mark Connelly's famous play, which was suggested by Roorck Bradford's novel.

Good Features at Isis Theatre

Spills, thrills, spine-tingling excitment...Action! It's all incorporated in Jack Holt's newest picture, Crash Donovan, which is the feature attraction at the Isis Theatre next Monday and Tuesday. In this latest role of the virile Holt, he plays the part of a daredevil carnival motorcycle rider who becomes a member of the state police force.

Because of the sensation which the pictures of the Louis-Schmeling fight caused, the Isis has managed to bring them back for two days, Wednesday and Thursday. In it the camera unreringly shows the battle of the German invader against Joe Louis.

On the same program, the Isis presents "Educating Father,"

"Arizona Raiders" is at the Isis next Friday and Saturday.

WHITE COLLAR WORKERS MAKING SURVEY OF RECORDS

Richmond, Aug. 12.- To give useful jobs to approximately 1,000 of Virginia's idle white-collar workers, the Works Progress Administration has operated during the past year an extensive research program which will result, its director believes, in saving lives, improving living conditions and in increasing the efficiency of government.

Its life-saving function is being performed through traffic surveys which were organized to improve highway conditions and reduce city traffic congestion. It is increasing the efficiency of government through projects for the study and clarification of records and the collection of data for city, state and county planning.

These people are being to work in libraries, in county court houses and government institutions all over the state.
